

The heartbeat of i-youth is young people. Not only are they the future leaders and parents of our nation and the world, but they are a major concern of today's society.

Recognizing that young people are idealistic and full of energy, i-youth seeks to involve them in healthy activities and pursuits such as community service.

i-youth believes that in helping others, young people can discover meaning and purpose in life. They can contribute to society by adding value to their community, school and home.
